Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Vinisius to Nigra: A 4th Cent, Christian Letter Written in South Britain and Discovered at Bath Everyone who has consulted Haddan and Stubbs s Councils and ecclesiastical documents, or Haverfield s Early British Christianity in the English Historical Review for July, 1896, or Bright s Chapters of early English church history, is aware how very little we know of the history of Christianity in Britain during the Roman occupation, and how scanty are its literary relics. There are the texts of some writings of Pelagius in the early 5th cent., a blundered copy of the signatures of five British ecclesiastics at the Council of Aries in 314, a few stones, rings, c., with a Christian monogram or motto - but that, I think, is the entire literary legacy known to have been left by the British Christianity of that period: there is not even a Christian inscription on a British tombstone which can safely be ascribed to the first four centuries. Consequently more than ordinary interest attaches to the fact that there exists in the...
