At home his mother waited, her heart grown chill For fear the boy had happen d on some ill; Then when he came she sought to charm away The fancies which beset him night and day. For when he slept he murmur d in his dreams Of books and stars, of owers and murmuring streams, Or, stranger still, of god-like spirits hovering near To whisper mystic meanings in his ear. Then half affrighted she would creep to bed, A few short hours to rest her weary head. About this time a stranger came to dwell A stone s throw from the wood our Eric loved so well. A splendid white-bair d man, of noble mien His furrowed brow denoted thought, his eyes were keen And...
